

Education Group Asks for Solution Of Fiscal Problems

Appeals to Legislature and Governor for 'Statesmanship'

MADISON (AP)—The state Coordinating Committee for Higher Education called on the governor and the Legislature Friday "to work conscientiously in the Wisconsin tradition of statesmanship to resolve the state's fiscal problems."

Its action was a stiff rebuff to the Legislative Joint Finance Committee which had asked the University of Wisconsin and the state colleges to present ways of operating in 1963-64 with budgets 15-17 per cent below current operating levels.

The Republican controlled Legislature has determined to recess June 7 without adopting a state budget for 1963-64 unless a compromise can be reached with Democratic Gov. John W. Reynolds on means of raising needed revenue. Republicans say a compromise must include a sales tax and Reynolds says, "Never."

Blunt Rejection
Without a budget, state agencies must reduce current expenditures by 15-17 per cent to stay within existing revenue.

Earlier Friday, university and college regents told the Joint Finance Committee bluntly, "It can not be done."

The coordinating committee took the same position and some members were in a mood to be more blunt.

"This situation is not a result of an economic crisis in Wisconsin," U. W. regent Arthur De Bardeleben of Park Falls said.

"This is a calculated, contrived crisis based on political considerations."

J. D. Rice of Sparta, coordinating committee member, called it "an artificial emergency" that would hit local schools harder than the university and colleges.

Political Issue

"Any legislator who takes part in the looting of school funds is not going to be back in the next Legislature," Rice predicted. "There will be an uproar among local people of proportions no one now realizes."

Although the university and colleges said they could not comply with the Joint Finance request, they did indicate what the impact of the suggested cuts would be if any such attempt were made.

A 15 per cent cut from current operating levels would mean a 46 per cent cut in the funds needed to meet demands of increased enrollments, the colleges said. On that same basis the cut for the university would have to be "More than 40 per cent," said U. W. president Fred Harrington.

Many Couldn't Enroll
The colleges would have to maintain 1961 enrollment limits, the college regents said, and the number of students turned away was estimated at: Eau Claire 657, La Crosse 417, Oshkosh 1,185, Platteville 454, River Falls 350, Stevens Point 697, Stout 240, Superior 140, Whitewater 1,019.

Harrington said the only way the university could operate would be to fire 700 staff members. This cannot be done, he said, because the university cannot or will not turn students away.

To illustrate what would happen to the university, Harrington said the cut would be equal to one of the following alternatives: Closing instruction in the 45 departments of the college of letters and science in Madison, or in the colleges of agriculture and engineering and the schools of education, law, medicine, nursing and pharmacy; or in the UW-Milwaukee, the college of agriculture in Madison and the eight UW centers; or dropping all state-

2 Unidentified Men Nab Pittsburgh Robber

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Two men captured a robber on a crowded downtown Pittsburgh street Friday, then slipped quietly away without waiting for thanks, police said.

Officers said the unidentified men collared Gerald Winkle, 29, an ex-convict, a few seconds after he pushed a woman tavernkeeper to the sidewalk and dashed off with an envelope containing a $400 bank deposit.

The two men grabbed Winkle and held him while passers-by hailed a policeman who took Winkle into custody.

Detention Centers Crowded

Added Demonstrations Seen at Jackson After Over 400 Arrests

BY BEN THOMAS

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—An integration leader called for renewed demonstrations in Jackson today after more than 400 marching Negroes—many of them teenagers—were arrested and taken to temporary detention centers.

Mayor Allen Thompson again rejected a Negro request for a bi-racial meeting. Conditions were too tense, he said.

Urges New Protest

Medgar Evers, state field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged continuance of the civil disobedience campaign.

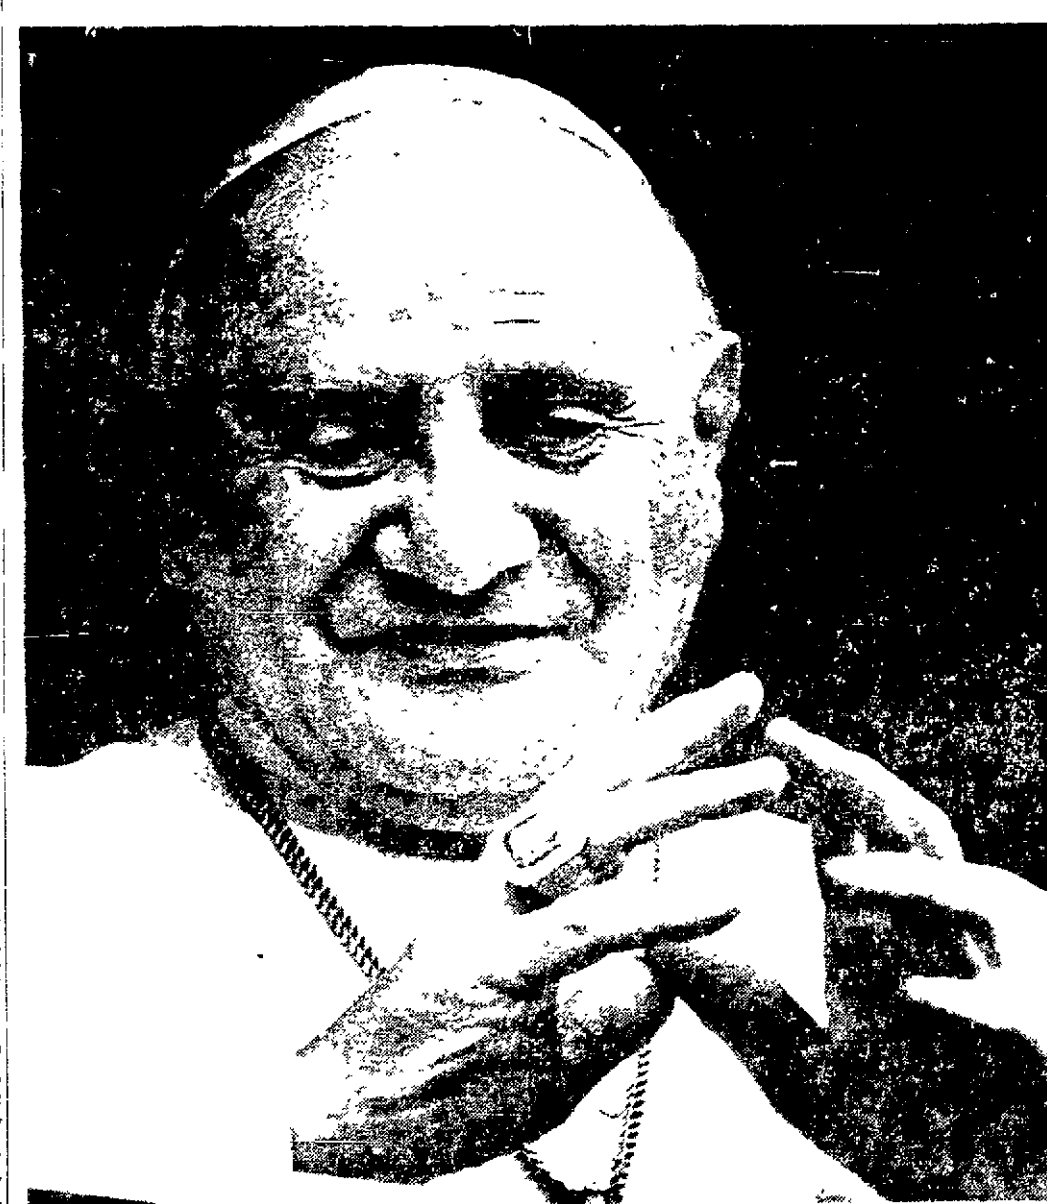

Evers, who appeared at a mass night rally, later declined to say what form weekend protests would take.

It took police more than five hours to process prisoners Friday after the first major demonstration in the Negroes' civil rights struggle here.

The final arrest figure: 327 juveniles, 94 adults. The group, ranging in years from 12 to 29, was charged with parading without a permit.

Hours later, police began re-

Council Predicts Increase in Fallout

Exposure Too Small for Concern or Change in Diet

BY JOHN BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP)—Largely because of last year's Soviet nuclear tests there will be an increase in fallout this year. But the exposure to Americans is still too small to cause concern and a change in the national diet.

This report was made Friday by the Federal Radiation Council, a top-level government group that surveys available radiation data. The fallout radiation an American will take in over 30 years is equivalent to one-thirtieth the amount he'll get from natural radiation in the soil, rocks and building materials, the report said.

No Need for Concern

There will probably be an increase in strontium 90 dosage to bone—an increase that will deliver to new bone formed this year radiation equal to one-fourth the natural background radiation. But even that should drop in succeeding years as exposure to strontium 90 lessens, and there is a turnover in the normal growing processes of bone. Strontium 90 intake is believed to be a cause of bone cancer and leukemia—cancer of the blood.

The fallout figures, the council said, are "far short of figures which would cause concern," but spokesmen were hard put to say just what the figures of concern would be.

Soviet nuclear testing which produced the explosive capacity of 180 megatons in 1962 caught the primary blame. U.S. tests of much less total energy produced about one-fourth of the atom-split-

7 Accused of Fraud in Sale Of Desert Land

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A federal grand jury has indicted seven men from the Los Angeles and Chicago areas on charges of mail fraud in the sale of Oregon desert land.

Postal Inspector R. Severson said sales of retirement, recreation and investment lots were to persons from Wisconsin to Hawaii.

He said the land, near Burns in Eastern Oregon and named "Lake Valley" Development, was falsely represented.

U.S. Atty. Sidney I. Lezak made public Friday the indictments returned at Portland May 1. Illinoisans named in the indictment were Abraham L. Koolish 70, a multi-millionaire with residences at Winnetka, Ill., and Los Angeles, and with offices at Skokie, Ill.

David Koolish, 43, son of Abraham, of Winnetka, with offices at Chicago.

John M. Phillips Jr., 38, president of the Harney Corp., living at Evanston, Ill., and an operator of Phillips & Cherbo, Inc., a Chicago advertising agency.

Jack C. Cherbo, 37, of Chicago, and an operator of Phillips & Cherbo advertising.

The Koolishes were convicted Wednesday of mail fraud and conspiracy in federal court in Minneapolis on charge of fraudulent solicitation of charity funds in the name of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation.

Regains Consciousness but Vatican Radio Says Pontiff May 'Die at Any Moment'

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII resisted death again today, regaining his senses a second time after sinking into unconsciousness.

The Vatican press office said he recovered consciousness at 3:40 p.m. (9:10 a.m. EST) — almost four hours after Vatican radio said he could "die at any moment."

Despite the astonishing duel with death being fought by the pontiff's sturdy heart, his doctor had said earlier: "I doubt if he can live until this evening."

The Vatican radio quoted doctors as saying:

"Short of a miracle, he could be expected to die at any moment."

The broadcast implored Roman Catholics of the world to pray for the pontiff, 81.

The supreme spiritual ruler of the world's half-billion Catholics was described as serene in his moments of consciousness early

Kaukauna Boy Injured in Fall

Robert Van Ellen
Hurt in Plunge
At High Cliff

SHERWOOD — Robert W. Van Ellen, 13, 117 Garfield St., Kaukauna, is in critical condition at Kaukauna Community Hospital today after plunging 40 feet off the cliff at High Cliff Forest Park, about 8 1/2 miles Friday.

Van Ellen, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Van Ellen, tripped off a retaining wall ringing the statue of Chief Red Bird and landed at the base of the cliff, John Fianzen, park manager, said the youth had no brush to cushion the fall.

Hospital authorities said the youth regained consciousness this morning and is suffering from a skull fracture and cuts.

A companion, Guy Senso, 18, of shock after the accident and was held overnight at the hospital for observation.

Returning Home

Van Ellen and four other companions were returning from a visit to a lakeshore cabin, Fianzen said, and stopped at the statue of Red Bird. With the injured youth and Senso were Mickey Thompson 18, 321 W. Ninth St., Tom Hestand, 13, 1304 W. Sullivan Ave., and Steve Hilgenberg, 18, 165 Raught St., all of Kaukauna.

Mrs. Francis Schneider who lives below the park, was hailed by the youths as she came from the park. She notified her husband, who brought help.

The pontiff's heart amazed his doctors, but one of them, Piero Mazoni, said "I doubt if he can be taken away."

The Pope was breathing regularly, but slowly and with difficulty. His temperature rose to 100.4 degrees, the Vatican said. But his stout heart still beat regularly.

Brothers, Sister Present

Pope John passed the night on the threshold of death with his brothers and a sister at his bedside.

The Vatican radio told of the Pope's confrontation with death. He said more than once, "We are suffering but suffering with love."

Many times during his early

Table Made From Carton Can be Used in Your Den

BY CAPPY DICK

An empty corrugated carton can be turned into a homemade corner table to use in your own room. It won't be strong enough to hold a heavy piece of marble stat-box, leaving the part should in Figure 2.

Paint the table inside and out with enamel. Two coats may be necessary because the material of the carton will absorb the paint faster than wood will do. While doing the painting, place the table on some sheets of newspaper spread on the floor to protect it.

If you stand a fairly heavy object on the table, set it back toward the corner of the top, rather than forward toward the curved edge. This will keep the table top from sagging too much under the weight.

CAN A DRAWING REVEAL THE SEX OF ITS ARTIST?

YES ☐ NO ☐

Yes. An Austrian psychologist, bridges, tunnels, and skyscrapers. Kate Franck, used a test in which Women were more likely to draw fruit, bowls and rowboats. These differences were found in people from eight different countries.

Is good judgment important in a wife?

Yes — No —

Yes, judgment is important in both the husband and the wife. If the wife has poor judgment she finds it hard to carry out the policies that she and her husband have agreed upon in running the household, rearing the children and arranging their social life. If the husband does not have good judgment, he makes poor decisions on the job, he loses money in value, he imperils their security and their life together as a couple. Fortunately, we all can improve our judgment ability. This is done by the simple but difficult process of learning from our mistakes.

A grown-up is self-directing. True — False —

True. A mature man or woman is able to make his or her own decisions, live his own life and plan his own future without waiting for someone else to tell him what to do. The immature individual waits for his colleagues, his wife, or his boss to direct him in the way he should go. This makes for incompetency and dependence in both sexes. To be truly grown up is not so much the matter of the age of the person, but to the extent to which he or she is able to direct himself effectively.

Area Residents Turn 'Stars' for Premiere

Fun Event Marks 21st Anniversary of Viking Theater New Mystery Movie

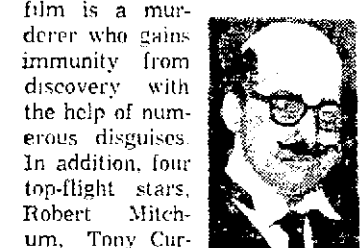

A. E. Housman wrote, "When I was one-and-twenty/ I heard a wise man say: 'Give crowns and pounds and guineas. But not your heart away: Give pearls away and rubies. But keep your fancy free'."

The Viking Theater has turned one-and-twenty and it can say it has followed at least the last part of Housman's wise man's advice. The theater's birthday was marked Wednesday with about the fanciest free show the city has seen for a long time.

The vehicle for the birthday party and the free wheeling fancy was what was labeled a Hollywood premiere of the film "The List of Adrian Messenger."

Appleton isn't Hollywood, but there are certain things that a premiere demands to keep up with the Hollywood standard. This didn't faze Wayne Berkeley, the Viking's Manager. He created his own stars with the help of some Fox Cities residents.

"The List of Adrian Messenger" is a 2000 vehicle for such goings-on. The main attraction of the film is a murderer who gains immunity from discovery with the help of numerous disguises. In addition, four top-flight stars, Robert Mitchum, Tony Curtis, Burt Lancaster and Frank Sinatra, have small parts which they also play heavily disguised.

Mystery Actor

Mystery Actor

Five of the stars at Wednesday's premiere also were heavily disguised and—in the logic of probability of the premiere—they could very well have been the stars of the film. Using all of his theatrical connections (actually an interview with friend Wayne), Jingo ferreted out the fact the "stars" were magnificent examples of our home town's make-up skill. Because of some misplaced qualms, the "stars" have begged Jingo to hold their confidence.

Look-Alikes
The other five stars also will remain anonymous to keep everything consistent, but they may be recognized on the street because they are close look-alikes of the famous personalities they represented: Doris Day, Elizabeth Taylor, Elvis Presley and Red Skelton.

Brand new cars brought the stars to the theater where they were met with fanfare from the St. Mary High, Menasha, band; a battery of TV and press cameras; a radio interviewer and, the most gratifying of all, a crowd of spectators. The crowd wasn't overly large, but big enough to carry off the spirit of the occasion.

'Red Skelton'

The film which caused all of this excitement deserves a word or two—not much more because like the rattle example in the "Yes, Virginia" editorial it can't stand too much analysis. In a word it is fun.

Superb Spoof
Although it is billed as the most bizarre murder mystery ever conceived, it actually is a superbly produced and acted spoof. The active stars of the show are George C. Scott, Dana Winter, Clive Brook, a magnificent new-comer Jacques Roux and Kirk Douglas, the producer.

The director is John Huston—a sure hallmark of excellence—and the film introduces Huston's son—a promise of a third generation of superb theatrical talent—and was filmed on location at Huston's Irish estate.

All of this is one the super-screen and represents a break-through of what this medium as 'natives' but as human beings. Too often the screen has

William Inge Turns Talents To Television

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tired of trying to please New York theater audiences—"a bunch of old-fashioned sports"—playwright William Inge is turning his talents to television.

Inge has signed a contract with CBS to create a series for the 1964-65 season. He has already started work on it. He plans to write five or six hour-long scripts—"a kind of contemporary 'Winesburg, Ohio' of the Midwest." From these CBS would pick one to shoot as a pilot film in late summer.

"I am much intrigued with writing for television," he remarked at his temporary quarters at a Sunset Strin hotel.

"TV Fascinating"
"During this past year I started watching television for the first time. I must say I was fascinated by much of it. Shows like 'The Defenders,' 'Kildare' and 'The 11th Hour' I found often excellent. I've enjoyed many of the variety shows, especially Dinah Shore's. Even when the dramatic shows were not well written, I often found the acting was good.

Gallant Men Repeat Show Of Revenge

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11)—The Gallant Men repeats a show its producers felt was one of their best. If you like your war stories heavy with impending tragedy and dripping with sentimentality, you'll think it's good, too. Our platoon meets a fighting paratrooper (Michael Parks) who seems determined to kill all the enemy to avenge the death of his two brothers. Then he gets a bullet wound, and he and his friends hole up in a convent, where a novice (Angela Dorian) seems determined to save his life to atone for the death of her brother.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — Sam Benedict (Edmond O'Brien) and his legal beagle puppy Hank Tabor (Richard Rust) split the duty in this repeat. O'Brien uses psychology to convince a proud old Hungarian restaurateur and all latter's relatively young wife that they really don't want a divorce. And Rust uses medical trickery to save his old flame.

7:30-8 (Channel 11) — Hootenanny goes back to Penn State University for another folk music fling. This one will particularly please country music fanciers: two groups (Jan and Sylvia, and Richard and Jim) sing the traditional blue grass music. The Limericks are featured and the international star, Martha Schlamme, sings a Civil War anti-war song, "Johnny, I Hardly Know Ye."

7:30-8:30 (Channel 2) — The Defenders repeat, like the famous "Twelve Angry Men," confines its action to one room. Six survivors of a Korean War torture chamber meet for a reunion and invite E. G. Marshall to join them. At a signal, five of them seize the sixth (Lee Philips) and charge him with betraying their mission. Marshall is assigned to defend him.

8-10 (Channel 4-5) — An old-fashioned Western decked out with some glamorous stars is the Saturday Night At the Movies repeat, "River of No Return," shot on location in the Canadian Rockies in 1954, has Marilyn Monroe, Robert Mitchum and Rory Calhoun in the leads.

Should Pay for Maid
This is a rule I came to instinctively, for in most homes if the wife did not hold an outside job, she could, if she had to, get along without any extra help. Thus, this is "her" expense which she should handle. If the expense is to be paid out of the family pool, the wife should directly make the payment. Or the wife may withhold a specified part of her earnings for this expense. Whatever the details, it should be understood that this expense is in the wife's department.

Included in the household bills, the wife will pay out of the family pool should be expenses to entertain guests at home. That's in line with American tradition. But when you go out, it's the husband's deal. The psychological aspect here is far more important than the financial.

Your Money's Worth

Working Wife Should Pay Cost of Hiring Maid

BY SYLVIA PORTER

There is no disputing that squabbling over money is a prime cause of divorce in the U.S. There is no denying that a harmonious financial relationship is an essential of a harmonious marriage. This is particularly important in the 12.5 million American homes in which both husband and wife work today and in which there are dual paychecks.

Yesterday, I outlined four of 10 basic rules I've worked out over the years to help husband-and-wife working teams and all married couples manage their finances properly. Here are the rest.

5 If the wife's job necessitates the added expense of maid service at home, the wife's paycheck should cover it.

Now W. Germany Says U.S. Skims Its Science Manpower

Fear Their Role as European Science Leader May be Cut

BY IOYAL GOULD

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—American talent scouts are skimming off the cream of West Germany's scientific manpower and many Germans don't like it.

Newspaper editorials and government officials fear this will eventually put a crimp in Germany's traditional role as a European science leader.

They have not come up with a way to keep their top scientists at home.

"Talent has always been attracted by high pay and top working conditions," explains an American official in Germany. "You can hardly expect German scientists or any others for that matter not to sell their services to the top bidders."

A similar "brain drain" problem has developed in Britain.

Conservative estimates place the number of German scientists leaving annually for the United States at about 111. This is roughly 5 per cent of the yearly crop of German university graduates in physics, chemistry, mathematics, biology, geology and astronomy.

German scientific circles say that more than half the scientists heading to America have doctorates and include the best graduates of German universities.

"Only the finest are interested in basic research," a German university professor said "and they know they can get the best research facilities in the United States."

Began After War

American recruitment of German scientists began almost immediately after World War II, when U.S. officials swarmed over defeated Germany searching out the makers of the Nazis' rockets.

They succeeded in persuading many to go to the United States, including Werner von Braun.

Indirect recruitment resulted from scholarship programs designed to take German students and researchers to the United States for a limited time. Many of the scholarship recipients became American citizens and never returned.

Concerned over the harmful effects the drain could have on the postwar development of German industry and science, Bonn government officials suggested that the United States require exchange students and professors to return to their native countries for at least two years before applying for U.S. immigration visas.

A U.S. law to this effect became operative in 1956. In the preceding year, 163 German scientists had gone to the United States as immigrants. In 1958, their number dropped to 128. German officials attribute the drop to the "cooling off" period.

Although the number of German scientists leaving for the United States has remained fairly constant since then, German officials fear it will rise as America's need for scientists increases.

They point to a recent report by the National Science Foundation that in the next decade, the United States will need twice as many scientists and technicians as American universities can produce.

German newspapers say American firms are carrying out mass recruitment programs in Europe.

To head off the trend, the German government recently discovered a law dating from 1929 requiring that the Federal Labor Office clear all help-wanted ads by foreign-based firms in German newspapers.

An office spokesman claims the only ads rejected are those designed to seduce scientists into leaving this country. He declined to define seductive ads.

When asked to square the law's philosophy with German recruitment of 750,000 foreign workers for German industry, his answer was "No comment."

However, both German and American sources say the majority of German scientists leaving for the United States learn of open positions through announcements in scientific and technical journals published in America. These magazines are found in university libraries.

What reasons do German scientists give for leaving this country? You find the answers if you agree not to give names.

A physicist said: "I want to devote my life to research. I can do it in America. Here in Germany I'd have to serve for years as the assistant to some professor, doing all his administrative work, before I could ever begin independent work of my own."

A biologist responded: "What impresses me is the American concept of team research — several specialists working together on the same problem. That's practically impossible in Germany with our insistence on keeping each scientific specialty strictly separated from the other."

A chemist said it's a matter of pay.

"I'm getting a starting salary in the United States of $925 a month," he said. "The best I was offered in Germany was $350 a month."

The president of the National Academy of Science in Washington, Dr. Frederick Seitz, has said that the present German university system does not allow young German scientists to develop their specific talents at an early age.

"Therefore scientists are continuously going to other Western countries, especially to the United States," he wrote in the publication "Physics Today."

Delay Action On Hiring Airport Firm

have that report before selecting the engineering study firm.

He said he did not see how that economic study report could be a factor in deciding which engineering firm is best qualified to make an engineering study. He thought the sooner the engineering study was made, the better it could be for the county's representation at the CAB hearings.

Reviews Firms

Hyde reviewed the size and type of work done by the four firms and suggested that the Buckley firm seemed, to him to be the best qualified for the study. It has had broad experience and specializes in aviation. Howard Needles Tammen and Bergendoff is one of the largest and most reputable firms in the field of transportation but its major work has been in highways and bridges although it does have an aviation division he continued.

Charles Barber and Associates is a medium sized firm of architects and engineers with its business being more in the design of terminal buildings rather than as airport consultant. Connell's work has been primarily in the South. Hyde indicated Pinckley placed the Buckley firm as one of the top three in the field of aviation consulting in the country, ranking along with Landrum and Brown and Leigh Fisher and Associates. He also commended the Howard Needles Tammen and Bergendoff organization.

The question arose as to whether it would be best to have a firm that also do construction engineering, such as in the case of the Howard Needles Tammen Barber firm, do the engineering study. If there were any future projects for which engineering was needed, such a firm would be qualified to do the work.

Seeks Objectivity

Shepard questioned this, stating his group would look at that feature as a disadvantage. "They might recommend something to gain that extra fee. We are primarily concerned with objectivity."

Size of the firm alone is not the best factor in making a decision. Supv. Steinhuber states, Dist. Atty. Jack Steinhuber added that he thought the county would want someone who is more experienced with a field the size of Winnebago County's airport.

Hyde cited the firm should indicate how the first piece, the present airport, fits into the long-range plan and that what is done will tie in with the picture 20 years from now.

"That has been our position all along," Shepard added, "so that is what is now in the immediate future works in the long-range plan so that the money is spent wisely."

The district attorney was instructed to contact Systems Analysis Research Corp. early next week to learn when its report will be received.

"I would like to get this settled and to get the firm working," Board Chairman Joseph Drexler, who is aviation committee secretary, remarked. "But we have to find some common ground on which to make a decision."

Committee members set a brief meeting for next Thursday night for the approval of bills and indicated they might return to the engineering study matter early the following week.

History May Say Pope John Began New Era for Church

Pontiff Set Out to Bridge Gap Between Classes, Non-Christians

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Business News Writer

History may record that Pope John XXIII ushered in a new era for the Roman Catholic Church in world affairs.

His brilliant predecessor, Pius XII, can be said to have brought another era to a close.

When the College of Cardinals went into solemn secret conclave in 1958 to select the 262nd supreme pontiff, the traditional exhortation read to them urged them to choose a man who would be a "bridge between the various social classes . . . a bridge among all nations, even those which reject and persecute the Christian religion."

Apparently John XXIII set out immediately to be just that. One striking message of his reign to the world's half billion Roman Catholics appears to have been that nothing on this earth is immutable, that the world and its people are constantly changing.

Eve of WW II

Pius XII had ascended the Throne of Peter on the eve of World War II. He had guided the church through that disaster and in the relentless East-West Cold War that followed. As his reign ended, the world was well into the nuclear age and on the threshold of bold explorations into outer space.

Pius was an implacable foe of Communism. He threatened excommunication for any Catholic who accepted Communist doctrine. He actively discouraged Catholics from joining fellow-traveling fronts. The part played by Pius XII in 1948 was given much of the credit for stemming a tide of Communist electoral strength in Italy.

Catholics Persecuted

The Communist enemy then was the product of the Stalin era, which had barely come to an end before Pius died. Roman Catholics were mercilessly persecuted in countries taken over by militantly atheistic Communists.

Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty had been imprisoned by Hungary's Communists. Alojzije Stepinac was in a Yugoslav Communist prison. Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński was fighting an uphill battle on behalf of his flock against the ruling Communists in Poland.

Stalin underestimated his antagonist. Sincerely, during World War II when Vatican influence came under discussion, Stalin had asked: "How many divisions does the Pope have?"

Reds Astonished

The Pope had no divisions. But Communists were to be astonished in later years at the vitality of the church in the face of persecution.

It was not until a year before Pius XII died that Stalin's closest associates were thrown out of power in Moscow and the grimmer aspects of Stalinism began to fade noticeably. But the world still was in the grip of a Cold War made more terrifying each year with development of fantastic weapons on both sides.

Still, what statesmen have since called "winds of change" seemed to be stirring. Communists were at ideological war among themselves in a conflict between their have-nots, represented by the Chinese, and their haves — a Soviet Union which was coming of age.

The echoes of the deep-throated Campanone, the mighty master bell of St. Peter's which pealed the news of a new pontiff's election, had scarcely died away when John XXIII began his crusade for world peace.

No Transitional Pope

Some had said he was to be a transitional Pope. Pius' reign had been so brilliant, some said, that a period of transition would be needed to carry the church from one era into another. But John XXIII, ascending the throne at 76, proved to be no transitional pontiff.

History May Say Pope John Began New Era for Church

He was a maker and breaker of precedents. He even considered traveling abroad — though he never realized the dream — although no reigning pope for a century had journeyed outside Italy.

He set out to reinvigorate the Catholic Church and to take steps toward Christian unity with the Protestant world, and for this purpose convened a historic Ecumenical Council, first in 92 years, last October.

He increased the College of Cardinals from its traditional 70 members to 87.

He received Alexei Adzhubei, son-in-law of Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in private audience last March, the first Papal meeting with a high-ranking Soviet Communist.

He issued eight encyclicals — open circular Papal letters — in the four years and seven months of his reign, and the last and most famous of these in itself broke precedents. It was the first ever addressed to non-Catholics as well as Catholics, and it was the first ever to deal exclusively with the theme of world peace.

It was to peace that Pope John devoted the great share of his energies in the field of international affairs.

Only a day after his election, John XXIII startled the world by talking to the radio with a challenging speech chiding leaders of great nations for not doing more to beat weapons into plowshares, for not doing more to channel man's genius into paths of peace.

Shortly thereafter the new pontiff sounded out members of his College of Cardinals, carefully, area by area, on the world's problems.

Last Encyclical

His last encyclical, issued in the Easter season of this year, is bound to have had a profound impact on world affairs. In the "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth) encyclical, a 15,000-word document addressed "To All Men of Good Will," the Pope pleaded that the peace of the world be guarded by a world authority. He expressed hope that the United Nations would become "ever more equal to the magnitude and nobility of its task." He urged disarmament and a ban on nuclear tests.

The encyclical also told Catholics that under certain circumstances they could work with persons who rejected Catholic doctrines, and — this seemed a key to his thinking — told them that political movements could change with time.

The encyclical clearly rejected Communism as a form of government.

Leaders around the world hailed the encyclical. Premier Khrushchev, who previously had acknowledged the Pope as an exponent of peace, was quick to express approval of the peace message.

Those in grades five and six are presently being contacted to participate in the pre-instrumental course which will meet twice a week for the summer.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

(AP Newsfeatures)

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is recognized internationally for his scientific contributions and his leadership in research and development associated with aeronautics and astronautics.

Also, Dr. Dryden is a religious leader. As a lay Methodist preacher, he has given to many added meaning about the relationship between their spiritual lives and the scientific world. Dr. Dryden's faith has been strengthened, not weakened, by his knowledge of the universe. To find purpose in our lives and in the universe is a part of the eternal search for God.

Dr. Dryden recommends "... by all means seek Him in nature. The more we understand of nature the more we comprehend the intellectual state of its Creator. But do not be misled. These are but the handiworks of God.

For, as Jesus said, "God is a spirit: and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth."

Out of School 35 Years

Editor Writes Thesis, Book on Family Living

BY MARIE PRICE

NEW YORK (AP)—Edith Deen went back to college after 35 years of being out of school. The result: A master's thesis and a book, "Family Living in the Bible."

The book, published this spring, was an outgrowth of a thesis on family living which earned her a master's degree at Texas Woman's University in 1960. It was her third volume dealing with religious subjects.

Mrs. Deen, wife of Edgar Deen, former mayor of Fort Worth, was a woman's editor and daily columnist on a Fort Worth newspaper for more than 25 years. Although Mrs. Deen was reluctant to start studying after she finished her second book, her husband's encouragement convinced her she should return to the college.

When Mrs. Deen tackled her thesis, she found the Bible covers the subject of the family more thoroughly than any book on record.

"Practically every one of the 66 books in the Bible has some reference to family living," she says. Her book is based on the King James version.

Her book outlines Biblical teachings on family life, and Mrs. Deen believes the Bible contains clues to the answers for all sociological problems.

The source of family wholeness and happiness, Mrs. Deen feels, can best be found by drawing closer to God.

"I hope my book will bring to public notice the high and noble ideals of family life which the Bible proclaims," Mrs. Deen says.

Mrs. Deen's previous books are "All of the Women of the Bible," and "Great Women of the Christian Faith."

To Your Good Health

'Staph' Germ Causes Boils, Skin Infections

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter had a carbuncle on her chin, and then three or four boils at a time.

She went to one doctor for several months. The boils broke out worse than ever. She has been to another doctor for six months and she has now gotten rid of the boils.

You once described this as a staph infection (which the first doctor said it was). What is the treatment? And will she get boils again from her clothing?—Mrs. R.C.

The staphylococcus (or "staph") germ comes to us, not like an invading army, but like a swarm of sneak thieves. It doesn't sweep into sudden epidemics like flu. It just hangs around all the time, waiting for a chance to cause trouble.

It has the contrary ability of developing resistance to some of the antibiotic drugs which are so helpful with other germs. Some of the drugs retain their powers better than others, and some strains of the germ have more resistance to the drugs.

Perhaps we could compare the staph germ to rats. Civilization readily conquers wolves and tigers and such dangerous beasts but rats sneak under our guard and flourish almost under our noses.

Breeding Place
So with the staph germ—in fact, our noses are a common breeding place for this pest.

Whether your daughter gained anything by changing doctors is doubtful. Maybe the first one started the job—and the other one just carried on the battle. But that's neither here nor there.

The point is that the staph germ is all around us all the time. Some of us have very good resistance to it. Some don't. Some people are "staph carriers," who may give the germ to others but not suffer from it themselves.

Others may infect themselves from time to time. The staph germ can be very virulent, and hospitals (nurseries especially) are constantly on guard against it. Occasionally it gets into the bloodstream and causes blood poisoning. It can be deadly. But more often it causes boils and other skin infections.

Scar Tissue
Boils and the like can leave scar tissue afterward, and soreness.

When a series of boils starts, utmost cleanliness—measures to keep the germ from spreading—is mandatory. Drugs will help. In extreme cases, however, special vaccines may be used (to suit a particular strain of germ) but this is a complicated task.

As to reinfection from clothing, no. Normal laundering will provide protection. But while the boils are active, keep the infected area covered with a sterile bandage.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about birth control pills? Do they cause blood clots and do you recommend them?—V.L.

I don't recommend any medication in wholesale fashion. These pills, like any drug, should be taken only under direction from a physician who knows the patient's needs and condition. As to clots, I've heard of such contentions, but at a recent conference on the subject the conclusion was that the risk of vein clotting has not been proved.

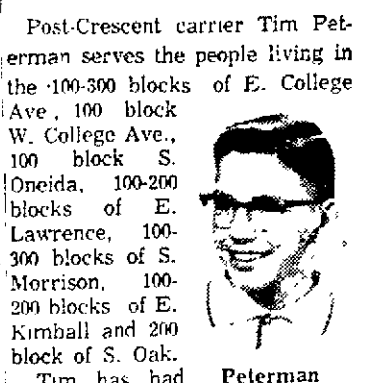

Dear Dr. Molner: I am told that taking gelatine over an extended time is injurious to the blood vessels and heart. I would appreciate your comment.—H. W.

There's no danger that I know of. By now I've heard rumors about almost everything.

Fat! My leaflet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing," tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Projects and Timetables

When Richard W. E. Perrin, Milwaukee Director of City Development, spoke here recently he made quite a point that city projects should be carried out on a timetable basis. His point was that without a strict timetable, projects seem to get stuck on one snag after another and sometimes seem to take forever to be completed.

Which brings us to the subject of Appleton's new main fire station.

Several weeks have passed since the Common Council decided to expedite construction of the new station, heeded the recommendation of the mayor, and purchased property at Atlantic and Drew Streets.

But as of today the city finds itself without approved plans for the new station. The architect hired by the city prepared a set of preliminary plans and sketches several weeks ago, but they were rejected on the grounds that estimates for constructing the building were too high, ranging from $296,000 to $419,000.

Somewhat discouraged, city officials decided to take a trip to Wausau where a new central station was inspected. They liked what they saw and agreed the Wausau station price tag was in line with the $250,000 to $275,000 the Common Council is willing to spend.

With prodding by the city, another sketch for the proposed Appleton station was submitted last week and is being given consideration. In the meantime, the architect has been supplied with complete information on department personnel and equipment it plans to house in the new facility. However, more loopholes remain to be plugged before definite progress is made.

The major decision appears to be the size of the proposed structure—whether to build to suit present needs or to construct a headquarters station to allow for expansion of the fire department. There also has been serious talk of eventually building a new station on the city's expanding far northwest side.

Before any building project can be firmed up, city officials will have to determine how much of an area the Atlantic-Drew station is supposed to serve, and then plan accordingly. It seems to us that valuable time already has been lost in planning this much-needed facility.

To Arms! The Know-Nothings Are Coming!

One of our favorite humor pages in the state is the editorial section of Madison's Capitol Times. It's fun to watch this newspaper gallantly re-slay dragons that were decapitated and buried a couple decades ago. And if it is history we seek, we can always find a few paragraphs of praise for the LaFollettes and the defunct Progressive Party.

Recently the CapTimes outdid even its own tradition of frighteningly funny journalism. "Is Right Wing Extremism Taking Over League of Women Voters?" it shrieked in headlines.

What was the dire occurrence that brought about this scare head, sure to shake up every kitchen and bridge table in the state? Had the league taken up arms and formed a private militia? Were they sweeping too hard under beds to dust up nonexistent Reds? Had they passed a resolution requiring all members to swear in blood that they recite the Pledge of Allegiance upon arising every morning? Had they made some sort of Lysistrata bond to make their husbands vote for Goldwater?

Not a bit of it. The CapTimes was in a snit because the League of Women Voters came out for some sort of a sales tax in Wisconsin. But there was some hope in the dreadful doings. According to the editorial, the Madison members to whom the CapTimes was readily available, fought the good fight but went down before the One Party Press. They alone didn't sell out Old Bob. Or is it Old Bill?

New York and Divorce

There has been considerable publicity about Gov. Rockefeller's divorce and remarriage, but one angle of the affair has been pointed up in a sermon by Dr. Maurice Bloom, rabbi at Tremont Temple in the Bronx. The governor "has the duty to advocate a reform of such laws as he believes not to be in the public interest nor good for people in general, as he obviously must believe of our outmoded divorce laws," said Dr. Bloom.

New York State recognizes only adultery as grounds for divorce. Residents wanting a divorce have the choice of going to Nevada or some other less rigid state for a few weeks, or rigging a distasteful adulterous scene to prove misbehavior—with the cooperation of both sides, of course. Both dodges are evasions of the law of New York. Both Gov. Rockefeller and his new wife took the out-of-state course.

It can be argued with some justification that the governor of New York, sworn to uphold the laws of his state, had a greater responsibility in this case than ordinary citizens. His divorce was a little as if Wisconsin's governor should go to Michigan and fill up the trunk of his car with oleomargarine to bring back to Madison. The laws may both be ridiculous, but they should not be broken by governors most of all.

But in any case, as Dr. Bloom pointed out, "It is not fair to the citizenry when only the rich can take dubious advantage of fictitious residency in another state for a brief time, and the less opulent are given an example of avoiding our laws by those who can afford it."

Whether or not one believes in divorce and remarriage, laws such as New York's are both impractical and perhaps even immoral since they are so consistently evaded. Gov. Rockefeller now has a personal responsibility to recommend changes. Statutes which are regarded with half-shut eyes threaten the whole structure of law and order.

The Kagnew Radio Station

The United Arab Republic and some other nations in Africa and the Middle East are agitating for the removal of a powerful United States radio station from northern Ethiopia.

The Kagnew station is a United States military radio receiver and transmitter and is one of the most important of such U.S. installations in the world. It was built as an Allied military project in 1941 and for many years its existence was kept secret. It serves as a vital link in our world-wide communications.

Kagnew, for instance, serves as President Kennedy's relay link with the White House whenever he is on flights across the Atlantic. Should a teletypewriter link be established between the Kremlin and the White House, Kagnew would be vital to the connection.

Wisconsin Soldiers Praised

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 30, 1863.

Gen. Wadsworth, of the First Corps of the Army of the Potomac, has published an order complimenting the 6th Wisconsin, Col. Bragg particularly and the Iron Brigade generally for gallantry in the recent actions at Fredericksburg (during the Battle of Chancellorsville.) The following is a copy of the order.

General Orders, No. 40 — May 9th, 1863 — The General commanding, availing himself of the temporary repose now enjoyed by his command to review the operations of the past few days, deems it proper to express his thanks to Col. Bragg, 6th Wisconsin, Col. Morrow, 24th Michigan Volunteers, and the gallant men under their command, for the heroic manner in which they crossed the Rappahannock River and seized the heights on the opposite shore on the 24th of April, and likewise to Gen. Meredith and the whole of the 4th Brigade for the promptness with which they followed in this daring enterprise.

By Command of Brig. Gen. Wadsworth.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — This Deep South city, 90 years old, is steeped in a tradition that is absorbed, rather than inherited.

Its relationship to the Old South is misleading. Because of its newness, it is forever trying to find a reason for its existence.

And because it is new, it is thrashing about in an effort to become a modern city.

It finds itself in the throes of social upheaval and rioting as Negroes battle for equal opportunity.

Why does Birmingham react so violently to social upheaval? The question puzzles many.

City of Laborers

This is a town of eight-hour-a-day laborers. But it also is a town of the finest traits of culture. Some of its citizens weep as racial strife gives their beloved city a black eye.

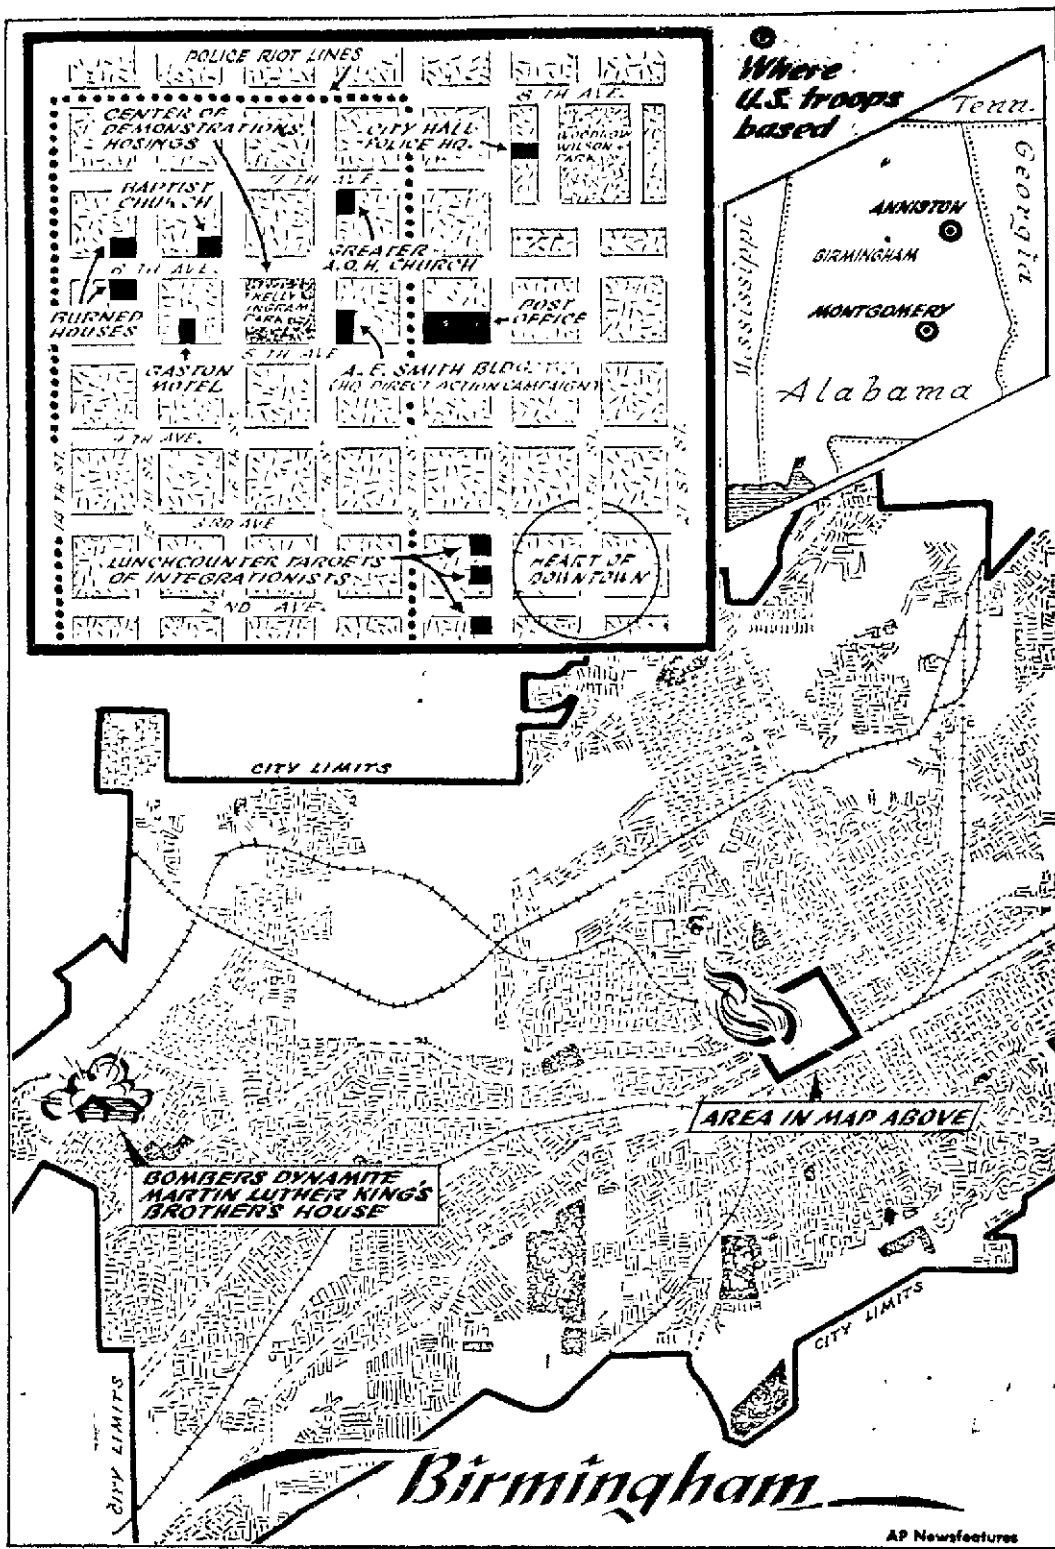

The city of about 340,000 population is nestled in a valley in the shadow of Red Mountain, so-named because of its red iron ore.

And Red Mountain, the spouse of the city, remains a geographical barrier to progress. Generally speaking, culture moved over the mountain. The working masses remained in the valley.

In 1873, the little village of Elyton came into being because two railroad lines crossed. This was the beginning of Birmingham.

Coal, Iron, Limestone

The only reason for Birmingham in the first place was because coal, iron and limestone

— the principal raw products of pig iron — were all within wagon distance of the steel mills built by the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co., which eventually became a subsidiary of U. S. Steel Corp.

Since then, the only major industry to employ a great number of persons here has been Hayes

Heineman Remark Hard Blow to Democrats

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Doubtless the hardest blow struck at the Democratic state administration's tax policy objectives by anyone outside the political area was the speech delivered recently at the state development conference at Green Lake by Ben Heineman, the head of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad.

Wyngaard

Heineman bluntly announced his conviction, based on a range of experience in consulting with industrialists and businessmen that is not easily challenged, that Wisconsin is suffering from its reputation for high and selective taxation.

It was an unintended irony, no doubt, that he should make his extemporaneous remarks at a promotion conference sponsored by a state agency headed by a man, and an administration run by a governor, who espouse precisely the kind of tax policies that Heineman was criticizing.

These may be prejudices, as Gov. Reynolds insists. No doubt there are other prejudices among ordinary businessmen about other localities of the country. Mississippi, to the rank and file business executive, might look like a poor place to locate, for other reasons than tax policy, although there are doubtless persuaders in that state who can explode such notions to their own satisfaction. There will be persons who will dismiss Alaska as too cold and Arizona as too hot.

Wisconsin, whatever else the country knows about it, is universally identified as a high income tax state. The record cannot be disputed. The state's income tax scale is among the highest in the country.

The issue today is whether the income tax will rise again, to make this clearly the highest income tax state. It may very well be that the issue two years hence will be whether the rate will rise again. For Gov. Reynolds maintains that there won't be a sales tax while he is governor and he is clearly preparing to run for a new term.

A Dump by Another Name Still a Dump

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — Don't call it a dump, George C. Lay, executive secretary of the Milford Planning and Zoning Board, warned Mayor Charles R. Iovino.

Lay wrote Iovino that any plans to use low lands first as dumps and later to develop them as parks should be labeled "parks under construction."

"This problem has been pointed out many times during the past 10 years," he wrote. "Several land-acquisition proposals were presented; but the mention of the word dump seems to put a dead stop to any consideration of any new site."

International Corp., a war baby born in World War II.

Iron and steel still dominate. There are many smaller plants, but no large manufacturing plants to use the raw products upon which the city was founded, except for the past iron pipe industry.

Tennessee Coal and Iron normally employs between about 20,000 and 22,000. Peak employment during World War II was about 30,000.

There was no particular reason for the railroads to cross here in 1873. The crossing could have been 40 miles in either direction but Birmingham would have become a city anyway, because of Red Mountain and its iron ore.

Coal is found in surrounding valleys, and limestone is almost as freely distributed throughout the area.

38.5 Per Cent Negroes

Although the city proper has about 340,000 population — including 38.5 per cent Negro — there are more than 600,000 in the metropolitan area.

And when the late afternoon rush is over, and the great masses who live on the other side of Red Mountain have gone home, Birmingham becomes almost as quiet as any small town.

There is little night life, and until a year ago it was against the law to serve liquor and to dance at the same place.

A prominent businessman said "People here have an inferiority complex. They pursue something negative rather than adopt a positive attitude."

The cultural background of the city includes several amateur theater groups, an out-standing art museum, a fine symphony orchestra. But culture doesn't sink down to the core of the people.

It leaves Birmingham a less polished city than most others its size. It is an area where the plantation abuts the mining town.

Writer Urges Special School For Bachelors

Fewer Married
Men Would Remedy
Population Problem

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Schools for bachelors?

Why?

After discussing recently the idea of special schools to prepare girls to be wives and boys to be husbands, I received the following letter:

"You have the shoe on the wrong foot, brother.

"One of the biggest problems in the world today is the population explosion. What is the cause of it? Too many husbands and wives. They are the ones who have children.

"Instead of schools to make more wives and more husbands, why not instead create schools to train more lads to become, happy, independent, self-respecting bachelors? This would automatically also result in more spinsters, thus shutting off the human population explosion at its source.

"Most husbands today aren't men. They're henpecked slaves who've sold their masculine birthright down the river. The modern women of today aren't worth the powder it takes to blow their big ears off anyway."

The letter was signed, "A thoughtful bachelor of 68 golden years—and proud of it."

At first glance the proposal advanced by this hale and hearty old single-footer seems to have at least a spurious merit.

It certainly is true that in the long run a marked increase in the supply of bachelors would gradually slow down the birth rate. But is this the best way to go about it? Would America be much better off with millions more bachelors around? The answer would seem to be a firm "No!"

There is no doubt that at times a family finds a certain type of bachelor handy. In return for a home-cooked meal, he performs chores around the house, babysits the kids while the parents go to the movies, fills in as a fourth at bridge, and cheerfully squires your departing mother-in-law to the air terminal.

We had a number of such bachelors hanging around our house when we were first married. But they were only temporary bachelors. As soon as they saw the joys of home life, they wandered off and got married themselves.

There remained a single hard-core bachelor whom I'll call Albert. He couldn't sew on a button. When the garbage had to be carried out, he suddenly developed a bad case of tired hands. All he could do was stick his feet under our table and eat.

Well, finally my wife became aware of Albert's double-dealing nature, and one fine spring night she tossed him out.

The fact about most permanent bachelors is they are simply male clinging vines. They are responsibility-dodgers who aren't avoiding marriage so much as they are looking for a new father and mother to take care of them.

Schools for bachelors? Maybe it's a good idea at that. Reform schools—where they could learn to grow up and face life like real men.

The varsity foursome used an aggregate of only 167 strokes to post a 28-stroke win over Kiel at Hickory Hills Country Club. The Kiel squad shot a 195 total.

Medalist Jeff Ware came within inches of matching par. He went one over, a 37, when he missed a short putt on the last hole. Other Chilton scoring included Ken Korb's 39, Tom Schmieder's 43 and Jerry Lodes' 46.

Dick Voight led Kiel with a 44. Tom Kna had a 45; David Baus, 49, and Dennis Baus, 57.

The win gave Chilton a 4-2 season record in league play. The Tigers wound up second in the league tournament.

Postmaster at King Retires After 29 Years

James LaSage Jr.,
To Fill Post Until Replacement Made

KING — Edwin Smith, postmaster at the King post office at the Grand Army Home for Veterans, concluded a career of 29 years in the postal service department Friday afternoon.

Smith will be replaced by James LaSage, Jr., King, who will serve as acting postmaster until examinations are given to permanently fill the vacancy.

The post office where Smith spent the last 29 years as postmaster is located in the Grand Army Home, and services the members at the home and people living within the unincorporated village of King.

Fewer Residents
When Smith first started as postmaster, he said there were more veterans living in a smaller area at the Grand Army Home. He said there are more buildings now and fewer members, although the population of King increased to give the post office a patronage of about 1,000 people.

Mrs. Rer Wyman has been clerk at the post office for about 18 years. She and Smith are the only two post office employees. The rural mail is delivered by carriers out of the Waupaca post office.

Smith is a World War I veteran and served about one year in Northern Ireland with the Naval Air Force. He was a mechanic and flew as a crew member on a flying boat.

Smith's Naval base was credited with sinking three German submarines. Their duty was anti-submarine and rescue patrols.

Houston Shades Braves, 3-2, Stops Losing Streak at 5

Bob Shaw, 2
Relievers Give
Only 2 Hits

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves demonstrated Friday night that it's possible to lose a ball game even when they have twice the hits of the winners.

The Houston Colts shaded the Braves 3-2 although Bob Shaw and two relief pitchers gave up only two hits. Ken Johnson of the Colts was touched for four hits and lost a shutout in the sixth when Henry Aaron hit his 16th homer.

The victory snapped Houston's five-game losing streak.

Shaw was a hard luck loser. Not only did he hurl two-hit ball in his six inning stint but two of the Colts' runs were unearned.

The decisive blow was a two-run single by rookie John Bateman in the fourth inning.

Houston picked up a run without a hit in the first inning. Ernie Fazio walked and took second when Johnny Temple bounced to Shaw, who threw the ball into centerfield in an attempted force. Fazio scored on Carl Warwick's forceout.

The Braves got more bad breaks in the fourth when Warwick's grounder took a bad hop off the shoulder of Eddie Mathews at third base. Howie Goss walked and Bob Lillis filled the bases when Norm Larker fumbled his grounder. Bateman then singled for two runs.

The Braves came to life in the sixth when Lee Maye beat out a grounder and Aaron unlearned a two-run homer into the left field bleachers.

Tony Cloninger relieved Shaw in the seventh, hurled two hitless innings and departed so Mack Jones could bat for him. Jones came through with a single and advanced on Maye's sacrifice. However, Mathews and Aaron couldn't deliver a hit.

Ron Piche came on in the ninth and the Colts went down in order.

Musial's Infield Fly Drives in Winning Run Against San Francisco

Cards Move Into Second Place;
Reds Tip Dodgers

By JIM HACKETMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stan Musial has batted in 1,921 runs. And No. 1,921 might rank as the oddest of The Man's career.

Musial got it Friday night with an infield pop up that went for an out but produced a sweet victory for St. Louis' fast-climbing Cardinals. Curt Flood scored on the weird play, giving the Cards a 6-5 triumph over front-running San Francisco that boosted them into second place in the National League.

Musial came up in the last of the ninth inning with the bases loaded and none out, and the game tied at 5-5. He hit the pop up and was declared out under the infield fly rule since the umpire judged the ball could be caught by an infielder, although it fell among four Giants.

So Musial registered No. 1,921, the Cards won their fourth straight and the eighth in their last nine games, and moved to within two lengths of the Giants. Cincinnati dropped Los Angeles to third, one-half game behind St. Louis, by clipping the Dodgers, 7-4.

Lynch's two-run homer carried Pittsburgh over the New York Mets 2-0; air-tight relief work by Lindy McDaniel preserved the Chicago Cubs' 2-1 victory over the Colts beat Milwaukee 3-2 with two unearned runs behind Ken Johnson's four-hitter.

The Cardinals were behind 5-2 after five innings but got a single run in the sixth and pulled even in the seventh when Bill White homered with a ma on. Flood opened the St. Louis ninth with

Controversy Over Spilled Oil

Jones Holds Big Share of Record Purse, 1-Punch Decision Over Sachs

Jones leaves for New York today, holding the winner's share of a record 500-mile race purse and a one-punch decision over contender Eddie Sachs.

Jones, a 29-year-old charger from Torrance, Calif., picked up the big check at the annual victory dinner Friday night. He and Sachs, 36, Detroit, had tangled earlier at a motel with an exchange of "liar" epithets in a controversy over oil spilled during the race Thursday.

There was a lot of talk about the oil left on the Indianapolis Motorway asphalt, with Sachs contending that oil from Jones' car caused him to spin out of the race. But no formal protest was filed.

The total purse of $493,530.60 and the first place payoff of $148,581 to Jones and car owner J.C. Agajanian both set records. Drivers work on percentage, usually 40 per cent.

Wrestled to Floor
The spilled-oil controversy had been going on for nearly 24 hours when Jones and Sachs started talking near a motel bar and Sachs brought it up again. Witnesses said each man called the other a liar and Jones said, "you Cluskey said earlier, 'I slid in call me a liar again and I'll bust you right in the mouth.'"

Sachs replied, "All right, you're

Oshkosh Nips Comets In 11 Innings, 5-4, Gains Berth in State Meet

Malnory Clouts
Two Homers to Tie, Win Game

By DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Catcher Hal Malnory wrote a storybook finish to the 11-inning struggle between Oshkosh and Waupaca Friday, hitting a game tying home run in the bottom of the ninth inning and then winning the contest with another 4-bagger in the 11th as the Indians captured a 5-4 decision and a berth in the WIAA state baseball tournament which will be held here next week.

The defeat was a heartbreaker for young Doug Kolb of the Comets. The sophomore righthander went the distance and, after giving up three runs in the third inning, shut Oshkosh out until Malnory's long bombs.

Larry Kopplitz, who came on in relief in the sixth inning with two men on base and nobody out, got credit for the win. He allowed only an infield hit, an unearned run and struck out seven in his 6-inning relief stint.

The game was marked by some sparkling defensive play by Waupaca and some base - running boners by Oshkosh but it was left in Malnory to provide the clincher.

Mathers Singles
Waupaca took a 4-3 lead in the top of the ninth with an unearned run. Warren Mathers singled off shortstop Chuck Paul's glove with one out. He was sacrificed to second by Dave Peterson. Gary Johanknecht then grounded to third baseman Pat Schrage who threw wildly to first and Mathers came around to score.

Malnory led off the Oshkosh half of the inning and sent Kolb's first pitch over the left-center field wall as center fielder Jim Strebe crashed into the fence trying to haul down the drive which cleared the barrier by inches.

With two out in the bottom of the 11th, Malnory hit two line drives off the left field fence in foul territory. He then hit one over the fence, but again foul. He sent the next pitch against the right field fence, also foul.

After working the count to 3 and 2, the senior catcher sent one of Kolb's curves over the 340-foot mark in left-center to end the 3-hour marathon.

Comets Score First

The Comets drew first blood in the game as Roger Green led off the third inning with a walk from lefty Dave Reamer. A sacrifice and an error advanced him to third from where he scored on a wild pitch.

Oshkosh scored three times in its half of the inning as Greg Gaither and Dennis Neitzel singled. They were advanced to second and third on Reamer's bunt and then scored on Roger Beck's triple. Beck scored on Kopplitz' infield out.

Waupaca tied the count in the fourth on hits by Peterson and Kaukauna at Harrison.

Oshkosh at Menasha.

Freedom and Menasha will face stiff tests as they seek to preserve their unbeaten strings in key Fox River Valley League games Sunday afternoon.

Freedom will be at Morrison and Menasha entertains Oshkosh. The league's other unbeaten team, Little Chute-Kimberly, will be host to Fond du Lac and Kaukauna will be at Harrison.

Howie Mathey, of Freedom, and Bob Roffers, of Morrison, will be the opposing pitchers in what could develop into a slugfest. Freedom has a potent hitting attack featuring the long ball of Dick Zeratsky and Jim Vandewettering. Mathey also showed his power last week with a home run.

Morrison lost a 6-3 decision to the strong Menasha Macs two weeks ago and then came back with a 2-1 win over Kaukauna last week. Roffers looked very sharp in the game.

Jim Meyer will be out to record his third mound win of the season for the Macs who will be playing their home opener. Oshkosh, after a win over Fond du Lac, was nosed out by LCK last week 3-2.

Faye Mehlberg or Al Harke will be on the mound for Little Chute-Kimberly against Fond du Lac. The Papermakers have won both of their games played.

Kaukauna and Harrison will be battling to evacuate the cellar. Bill Lappen or Leigh Wachel will be the hurling for Kaukauna, and Dick Wankey will pitch for Harrison.

Bunn's victory in the 880 was a standout effort. Bunn had been bothered with a cold all week, and Kohlman was doubtful of his performance. However, Bunn, striding between second and third place most of the way, sprinted the last 40 yards to pull away to the win.

Bunn was nearly upset on the first turn of the final lap. A Sheboygan North runner out Bunn off sharply, hitting Dick's foot in the process and Bunn nearly went

Two Dubuque Home Runs in 10th Tip Foxes

Milwaukee, Hits
Winning Blow

DUBUQUE — Sam Parrilla and Ken Ellwein slammed their second home runs of the game in the 10th inning here Friday night to give Dubuque an 8-6 victory over the Fox Cities Foxes.

For the Foxes, it was the same old story. They left 14 runners stranded on base with nine of them being left on in the first four innings. The Foxes left the bases loaded in the first and third and failed to get anyone on base in only one inning—the ninth.

Manager Billy DeMars' charges had apparently tallied the winning run in the top half of the 10th frame when Chuck Embrey just beat the relay to the plate following Bill Stanley's double.

Off Johnson
Parrilla hit a 2-2 pitch over the left field fence off Charlie Johnson with one out to tie the score in the last half of the 10th.

Tom Newton singled before Vern Fuller fled to center for the second out of the inning. It was here that Milwaukee's Ellwein powered a long homer to left center for the winning margin.

Embrey homered for the Foxes in the sixth with the bases empty. Fox Cities—6

Former Fox Cities Area Folks Happy to Remain in Alabama

60 Families Came South as Workers for Kimberly-Clark

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

SYLACAUGA, Ala. — Twelve years ago, some 60 Wisconsin families invaded the deep south. The families moved, lock, stock and barrel into this and nearby communities while their breadwinners became a working cadre for the then new $85 million Coosa River Plant of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation.

What has happened in the valley folks in the past 12 years?

Well, they've "integrated" with the Southland for one thing, and for another thing they have become the most useful, devoted workers in civic enterprise in this city of 18,400 people.

But back to the words of Alabama-born J. V. Greer who is editor and publisher of Sylacauga's weekly News:

"I declare," he said, "those Wisconsin folks beat anything I've ever seen. Theah more Southern than the burn southerner, and theah the most useful folks around."

Do Everything

"You want to find out what theah doin'? Why, theah doin' everything. Theah the head of the PTA, theah the head of the Men's Garden Club and the Women's Garden Club, theah the head of the Little League, theah the head of the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts, theah the head of the service clubs, theah the head of the Fund Drive, theah the head of the Blood Bank."

"We can't get along without them folks. Us Southern folks is lazy and slow-movin', but them so-called Yankees, theah quick and theah ingenious and they know how to get things done, and they go and do 'em."

"Man, we couldn't even get the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts going until them Yankees come along. They all been mighty good for us and they all about the best citizens you could get," said Greer.

Some of the original 60 families have dwindled away by transfers, retirement and deaths but only two families chose to move away because of plain dislike.

Others, however, have become died-in-the-wool Southerners. They like the gentler climate than Wisconsin offered and the softer way of life. Though none of the original adults who came here 12 years ago speak with a southern accent, virtually all of the children — many of them now grown to adulthood — speak profound Alabama. Most of these young adults have wed Southern men or southern women and some have children — Alabamians.

With a rare exception or two, these Wisconsin people have come to love the state.

Appleton Native

Said Calvin Stewart, formerly of Appleton: "I bequeath you and everyone else my share of Wisconsin. I think of the snow and the slush and the cold. I recall my garden freezing out in May. You may have that. As I look back, I come to the realization that the only thing I have lost by moving here are my friends and the miserable weather. Alabama is a wonderful place to live."

If Wisconsin people have "taken hold" in the interest of civic improvement, and they have, none has become more useful or beloved in the community than Mrs. Calvin Stewart, a bright, efficient lady who is irreplaceable in Sylacauga. Many community honors have come her way and deservedly. Clearly the most outstanding woman in Sylacauga, she has been voted "Woman of the Year" and "Citizen of the Year" and was runner-up in a state-wide accolade, "Mother of the Year."

Stewart, a forerunner for the Coosa River Division of Kimberly-Clark has been almost as busy. Some of his activities in the 12 year span of his life in Sylacauga include the presidency of the PTA, district chairman of the Boy Scouts, Camping and activities chairman of the Girl Scouts, committee chairman of the American Pulpwood Association, president of the Rotary Club, president of the Presbyterian Church Association, church deacon and elder, and president of the Sylacauga Band Boosters Club.

Other former Wisconsinites have functioned enthusiastically, too, in community and regional affairs. Most of the present Wisconsin families who came to Alabama live in the general area — in places like Anniston, Childersburg and Talladega. The K-C plant is located about 15 miles Northeast of Sylacauga.

Remain There

When a death occurs in this Wisconsin pocket of Alabama, the deceased has almost always chosen to be buried in the South. Thomas Ryan, a former Appletonian, died and chose to be buried here. Mrs. Ryan and her three children will remain in the Southland.

Joseph Ertl and Anton Suchy, former Fox River Valley folks, retired and elected to remain here. Elmer Van Dunkel, formerly of Kimberly, has retired to a farm near Fayetteville. Wisconsin is not for them.

M. D. Behnke, purchasing agent at K-C, now lives in Childersburg and is happy. He'll stay here if ling fission energy that creates radioactive fallout, the council said.

Fallout Will Show Increase

Strontium 90 Increases

Strontium 90 in the U.S. diet will probably show a fourfold increase this year over 1961, a twofold increase over 1962. This will be reflected by a similar increase in the strontium 90 concentrations in human bone. New bone formed this year will take the highest concentrations before the concentration rate stabilizes by 1964.

Council spokesmen said that the guesswork estimates of risk because of fallout radiation, quoted in the council's report last year, are essentially true for this year. Of greater persistence and potential effect is the likelihood that the slight genetic risk estimated last year will in the long run be doubled by the latest round of testing. These are extremely long-range effects, since much of the fallout—largely carbon 14—won't be cleared from the atmosphere for a number of years—and because it has such a long radioactive life. It loses half of its radioactivity in 5,760 years.

When it finally becomes part of the earth's radiation environment, the carbon 14 produced by last year's tests will essentially double the natural levels of carbon 14.

This means essentially a doubling of the genetic hazard—put by last year's report at one chance in a million that a physical or genetic defect can be attributed to fallout, council spokesmen said.

of the order and their pupils to save up coupons.

She said the Dominican sisters are building a new rectory, chapel and novitiate building at their Wisconsin community where some 700 persons are housed.

The old silverware, she chuckled, "probably came over on the Mayflower."

Widespread Group Savings

General Mills says group saving such as hers is fairly widespread. Although their catalog doesn't carry items such as fire trucks, the company is willing to negotiate a "price" for any organization ambitious enough to start saving.

The fire department in Tampa, Fla., is working on the new truck, which General Mills will trade for 1,700,000 coupons.

A church group in Cleveland, Tenn., made the deal for a new school bus, turning in more than a million little cardboard pieces.

Sister Mary Mathias is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Matt, Werner, Sheboygan, Wis. Werner is editor and publisher of the Sheboygan Press.

General Mills' coupon service says Sister Mathias, when she collects an additional hoped-for 110,000, will be in the "big leagues" of coupon savers.

One of the real champions was the Bethesda Lutheran Home in Watertown, Wis., which started just last September and recently turned in 1,252,706,000 tabs. The home got a check for $6,263 and used the money to buy commercial laundry equipment. And, the home has a credit slip for another 150,000 coupons and is still saving.

warmed the world's half billion Roman Catholics not to cherish "any illusions." It said the Pope still lay near death.

For hours the Vatican Radio had remained on the air saying the Pope was passing away and death was imminent. It broadcast bulletins on his condition every 15 minutes.

Then at 5:30 a.m. the radio, announcing it felt the immediate urgency had passed, went off the air.

At the Vatican and in churches around the world, Roman Catholics did not relax their prayers. Prelate after prelate said Mass in the studio outside the Pope's bedroom.

Hundreds in Square

Hundreds knelt through the night in St. Peter's Square below the Pope's window. There had been thousands there Friday evening, but most had gone home without expecting the Pope to survive the night. Once more the crowds swelled as the sun came up.

Papal physicians blamed the sudden onslaught on peritonitis, on top of the Pope's stomach condition, for Friday's lightning deterioration.

Only a short time before, his doctors were voicing optimism about signs of improvement. They said that hemorrhages caused by his tumor had been stopped.

The rallying had seemed so positive on Thursday that his chief personal physician, Dr. Antonio Gasbarrini, had returned to his home in Bologna.

He was urgently recalled Friday after Extreme Unction had been received by the Pope.

The Pope's brothers and sister, summoned from their homes in North Italy, flew to Rome Friday night. Already wearing the black of mourning, they were rushed to the Pope's chamber in the Apostolic Palace. The brothers are Zaverio, Alfredo and Giuseppe Roncalli, and the sister, Assunta.

Pope John was racked by pain as he lay in a cast iron bed in his palace. But when conscious his mind was clear. He was receiving tranquilizers.

Through the night a parade of cardinals streamed to his room.

Before falling into a coma, the Pope talked at length with the prelates, saying he was ready. Once again he expressed hope that his Ecumenical Council would be completed.

The council had been scheduled to convene in September to resume its task of modernizing the

Drowns in Pond On Parents' Farm

SPARTA (AP) — Three small children spent two hours in a boat Friday after their cousin drowned in a newly constructed fish pond on his parents' farm.

The body of Allen Molstad, 16, was recovered with the help of Sheriff Arden Oss of Monroe County.

Oss said, Molstad, who could not swim, had taken the children, aged 3, 5 and 7, onto the pond in a boat. When near the center of the pond, Molstad tossed out the anchor, donned a swim mask and dived into the water. He did not emerge.

The children managed to untangle the anchor rope and the boat drifted to shore in two hours. They and their mother, Mrs. Gary Broxning of Joliet, Ill., visiting at the Molstad home.

The pond is 40 by 50 feet and about 12 feet deep in the middle.

Sunday Night Called Most Hazardous Time Of Holiday Period

MADISON (AP) — The Motor Vehicle Department warns that the period 6 p.m. to midnight Sunday will be the most hazardous time for motorists during the Memorial Day weekend.

Department records show that 42 persons lost their lives in Memorial Day weekend accidents during the last five years and 14 of the fatalities resulted from accidents in the 6 p.m. to midnight period.

Safety Director Dan Schutz said Friday, "This means that one-third of the holiday deaths took place in the last six hours of the observances."

He suggested that travelers: Start early and avoid late hour congestion on main roads. Stay away from intoxicants. Stop and rest to prevent edginess and drowsiness. Resist the temptation to cut in and out of traffic lineups. Avoid illegally high or low speeds.

Lawrence Says:

Kennedy Asks For Powers Over Business

Nothing in U. S. Constitution Gives Him This Authority

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Negro leaders are high-pressuring the Kennedy administration to coerce the dissenters on the segregation issue, even if it means the ruin of many private businesses which are caught in the emotional collision between rival groups in local communities.

Lawrence

President Kennedy apparently has decided to pass the buck to the Congress. He has gone much further without law than any other chief executive to compel what is called "equal rights." But the Negro leaders — stimulated by the immunity granted by the Supreme Court recently to participants in street demonstrations which have provoked violence — say Mr. Kennedy hasn't done enough. So the President concedes, in effect, that he cannot proceed without a law, and now is about to ask Congress for more sweeping authority over business than has ever been given a chief executive in a federal statute. If Congress balks, Mr. Kennedy can say he at least did his part.

The proposal is that the President be given the right to close down any business if it insists on choosing its own customers or if it refuses to serve those who may be disorderly or otherwise engage in provocative acts that offend other customers and cause them to abstain from patronizing the business.

Chances Dim

Nothing in the Constitution, of course, authorizes any such use of power by the President. But Mr. Kennedy need worry little about this slight omission, for the chances are that no Congress will ever pass such legislation. It would mean, if enacted, the delegation to a President of the power of dictatorship over all private businesses through the country. Many a member of the Senate or House who votes for such a statute would find an aroused and resentful electorate in 1964 imposing its only form of redress — the defeat of those who voted for such a bill.

The campaign issue would not be based on the racial controversy alone. It would reach into every kind of economic activity in the country. For the proposed law would declare, in substance, that the federal government can erase all state lines for business operations and decide that every business can be regulated from Washington. Controls can then be imposed as to the customers a business must serve and the employees it must hire.

The intention of those who now are drafting a bill on the subject is to rely on that provision of the Constitution which says Congress shall have power "to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states." Again and again throughout American history, the Supreme Court has decided dozens of cases involving federal laws that endeavored at first to distinguish between businesses operating within a state and those whose operations extended outside a state. Gradually the court has inclined to the view that all businesses can be affected by interstate commerce. The emphasis, however, has been on their interstate character and on commodities — their manufacture or production or transportation.

Rare Instance

Only rarely has the Congress sought to deal with individuals in interstate commerce, and then only with the conditions of employment of those who are directly connected with businesses on either a local or national level. Never has the Congress or the Supreme Court held that a business cannot choose its customers or cannot discontinue operations permanently or for a short time if it feels so inclined.

The Supreme Court nowadays, however, is a quasi-political body. Just a few days ago the court ruled that those who provoked street demonstrations under cover of "civil rights" demands — often resulting in injury to other citizens — were guilty and couldn't be disciplined as violators of local ordinances designed to preserve law and order.

So, if Congress should pass a law giving dictatorship powers to a President, a majority of the Supreme Court justices could be expected to uphold it. They probably would disregard the article in the Constitution which says no person can be "deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law."

The only barrier which really remains is that which the voters themselves can erect in expressing their opposition to those individual members of Congress who might be inclined to vote for a measure giving the President control of the operations of every business — not only as to customers chosen but as to employees hired. For the federal government would be able to compel the hiring of applicants who had been turned down. Irrespective of the protest of the employer that he was hiring on the basis of efficiency, federal officials would be authorized to require acceptance of applicants in private business on whatever basis these officials chose to determine in each case.

Douglas Opinion

The inspiration for this new move by the Kennedy administration is evidently the concurring opinion rendered recently by Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court. Although the explicit issue was not before the court in that case, he wrote at length his view that every private business which today operates under a state, city or county license thereby becomes "state-connected" and thus within the federal concept under the fourteenth amendment, and that it can, therefore, be constitutionally restricted in accordance with specifications laid down by Congress.

No other issue in the 1964 campaign will affect the entire electorate so penetratingly as the one raised by the prospective legislation about to be sponsored by the Kennedy administration. The economic impact of this move might be such that the debate will no longer be confined to the racial problem but will raise the question of whether a free-enterprise system could long survive under such totalitarian controls.

St. Norbert To Graduate 134 Sunday

8 Students From Fox Cities Area Will Receive Degrees

Degrees will go to 134 June graduates at St. Norbert Sunday afternoon in the 65th annual commencement program of the college.

The outside academic procession will begin at 2:45 p.m., followed by the commencement convocation at 3 p.m. in the Hall of Fine Arts auditorium. Both events will be preceded by a reception for the graduates, their parents and guests, and faculty members in the Memorial Union lounge.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Douglas M. Knight, president of Lawrence College, Appleton. Dr. Knight is the president-elect of Duke University, and will assume that post this summer.

Dr. Knight will receive an honorary doctor of letters degree (Litt.D.) from St. Norbert College. Another honorary degree, a doctor of law (LL.D.), will go to the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Maurice S. Sheehy, the baccalaureate speaker.

Msgr. Sheehy, currently a pastor at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was chairman of the religion department at the Catholic University of America for many years. He is also a well-known Catholic author, and has had a distinguished career as a Navy chaplain. He holds the retired rank of vice admiral, as the only chaplain in U.S. history to reach the three-star rank.

Thirteen of the June graduates will receive their degrees with honors. The list is headed by Miss Marilyn Marshall, DePere, who is graduating summa cum laude, with a straight "A" record.

Graduating magna cum laude are Jean Hertel, Sheboygan; Kathryn Linquist, Menasha, and Joanne Schaefer and John Schauer, both of Green Bay.

Eight graduates will receive their degrees cum laude. They include Virginia Barbiaux and Marilyn Kallross, both of Luxemburg; James Maas and Sharon Martin, both of Green Bay; Bruce Mikecinac, Chicago, Ill.; Jerome Mosciński, Stevens Point, and Ronald Renier and Frater Cyril Robert Flatley, O. Praem., DePere.

An additional 25 January graduates also will receive their bachelor's degrees Sunday, since St. Norbert has discontinued a formal commencement program for the mid-year graduates.

Twenty-seven seniors will be commissioned as Army second lieutenants in the Sunday afternoon ceremonies, including five in the Regular Army.

Eight students from the Fox Cities area are among the graduating seniors at St. Norbert College.

These include Jerry Vanden Hogan, Little Chute, B. S. degree in business administration; Richard Hietpas, Little Chute, B. S. degree in mathematics; Nicholas Ebben, Appleton, B. Signs carried by the pickets (there were two this morning) carried the notation, "no contract — no work. . . local 151-b."

Air Pistol Reported Missing From Case

A .22 caliber air pistol valued at $22.50 was reported taken from a showcase at Schiedermayer Hardware Co., 623 W. College Ave., Friday.

Appleton Church, Sets Confirmation Service

A Pentecost confirmation service will be held at St. James Methodist Church at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Three boys, Gary Johnson, John Neider and John Graf, will answer the catechetical questions and participate in the candlelighting ritual of the service. They have taken the two-year program of instruction and become full members of the church.

An Original Poem on sweetness and light inspired "ballerina" Floyd Slayton to dance through the crowd, scattering flowers, at the happening sponsored by the Xavier junior boys. A happening has been called "an extension in time and space of modern art," and includes audience participation. It reached Appleton at 9:17 p.m. Wednesday. (Post-Crescent Photos by Ralph Acker)

Time-Space Continuum (?)

'Happening' Happens to Happen As Xavier Gives Valley a 'First'

The Fox Cities' first "happening" happened at 9:17 p.m. Thursday at Xavier High School.

A "happening" is an expressionistic extension into time and space of modern art. It is a rage sweeping the East, and reached Appleton Thursday evening under the auspices of the junior boys at Xavier.

About 150 students crowded the center court at Xavier to watch—and at times be involved in—the zany and satirical events of the happening. The admission price was 3 cents, a sly dig at the sales tax. The starting time of 9:17 p.m. was simply a sign of non-conformity.

Torch Bearer
The happening began with David Van Lieshout running around the roof of the court in a trick uniform, carrying two torches, in an expression—possibly—of the loneliness of the long-distance runner. He ran throughout the program.

James Bach then read an original poem about birdseed, while boys clad in sheets surrounded him flapping their "wings." The poem showed—maybe—the need to help people.

In a poignant comment on "The Light That Failed," Paul Gloudeimans climbed a ladder and held up a lightbulb, which didn't light. Don Mullen then climbed another ladder with another lightbulb. It didn't light either.

Rolling Stone
Robert Zwicker brought a cliché to life as he rolled across the courtyard, screaming, "a rolling stone gathers no moss." A screaming chorus of boys, directed by John Besser, then gave one view of community singing.

A toga-clad and torch-bearing Dan Baer—the Statue of Liberty? Caesar?—was carried through the audience on a table by a group of junior boys, most decked out in burlesque.

Thomas Arnoldussen presented a touching original poem on sweetness and light, moving Floyd Slayton, in ballet costume, to dance through the audience scattering flowers from a basket.

No One Spared
In what was—or might have been—a parody of materialism, Peter Vandenberg portrayed a tree, complete with leafy branches, chanting "Woodman, Spare That Tree" while lumberjack William Busch callously chopped him down, called "we've got another one," and had a crew carry him off.

A spoof on the "Ban-the-Bombers," with banners, shouts and skyrockets, crashed to a close when a group of boys hauled a kitchen sink to the edge of the roof and tossed it into the audience. The "sink"—made of light polyethylene—caused no injuries.

Individual Matter
Robert Zwicker delivered a stirring oration from the dictionary, reading the 10 definitions of the word "plate."

As with all modern art forms, the interpretation of a happening is a highly individual matter. The Post-Crescent's interpretations were supplied by Robert Delloff, Xavier boys' guidance counselor, who admitted, "As a member of the audience, I felt rather insecure."

The happening was the doing of the junior class boys. Brother Louis is their moderator.

It ended with all participants chasing the audience out of the court, yelling, "What do you expect for 3 cents?"
